

The Project Management Loyalty Cost

Greetings!

It has been a busy month so far at Arras HQ and we're here to keep you up to date with all the latest reports, news and of course, vacancies from the world of Project Management.

Including the report from our latest survey: UK Project Management Market Snapshot as well as news about Amazon's attempt at AI recruiting and how to maintain your certifications for free.

Is it Really a Candidates Market?

It was reported this summer that the UK had its lowest unemployment rate since 1975, stating that a "candidates market" had emerged. However, none of these reports were specific to project management so naturally we were curious to find out more.

To try and build a clearer picture of what has been happening in the UK project management domain we sent out a survey. We collected 500 responses, which have been collated into the report which you can access here.

John Thorpe (author of the report and the PMBR) presented the results of the report live at Project Challenge earlier this month where he also discussed: why the current market is confounding so many experts, what is a candidates market? and who are the current winners and losers. John also took the time to answer some questions from the floor.
